

This explanation helps answer the following question:

Which applicant characteristics increased my model risk estimate?

Main takeaway: the model gives this application an 18.4% credit-risk estimate, above the bank's 12.0% refusal cutoff. Of the four characteristics shown, revolving-credit use contributes the largest increase to the estimate.

Revolving-credit use

Applicant characteristic: 78%

+4.6
percentage points

Recent late payments

Applicant characteristic: 2

+3.0
percentage points

Credit-history length

Applicant characteristic: 19 months

+2.1
percentage points

Requested amount / disposable income

Applicant characteristic: EUR 18,000 /
EUR 1,950

+1.5
percentage points